Caleb: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qLcc19mt4eA me: oh right, that thing I listened to yesterday and will listen to today and tomorrow me: thanks!
Caleb: Faggot.
me: so, Victoria 2 is coming out in a week
Caleb: Russian inspectors are coming to an Air Force base in Shreveport.
Caleb: I'm gonna run that as b-roll.
me: whaaaaa?
me: UN?
Caleb: START treaty.
me: UN TAKING OVER AIRBASE?!?! me: THIS IS POLICE WATCH me: I'M A TELEVISION HOST me: still?
me: we still have that?
Caleb: Just signed it in April.
me: oh, new one
Caleb: Shreveport's got B-52's the Russians need to see apparently.
me: But troubles were just starting to escalate at that point. News of the film enraged a powerful civil rights organization named the Italian-American Civil Rights League. It was headed by a real life mobster and crime boss Joe Colombo. The league's mission was to challenge the stereotype that all Italian-Americans were involved in organized crime. Members of the league began protesting against the making of the film on the streets. Paramount began to receive threats from the mob. Sinister phone calls were made to producer Albert Ruddy threatening his life. The head of the production Robert Evans and his wife were also threatened. Attempts to shoot the film on the streets of Little Italy were severely hindered by the mob. In one particular instance a cinemobile used by the production staff was stolen from the shooting location.
Caleb: It's like the Jewish groups demanding that Showtime drop Oliver Stone's documentary after he said Jews control the media.
me: it's actually worse me: that's just the first part of what happened me: look at this Tom Shales guy me: http://yglesias.thinkprogress.org/2010/08/washington-post-television-critic-condemns-mourning-for-dead-nato-soldiers-afghan-civilians/Caleb: Yeah, I've seen him before.
Caleb: Handsome devil.

me: "Tapper, in fact, grew quickly and comfortably into the role of “This Week” host and became a kind of “favorite son” in campaigns by fans on Facebook and the Internet generally—even as the clock ticked his interim tenure away and the Grand Duchess Amanpour approached on her royal barge from overseas."
me: GRAND DUCHESS AMANPOUR me: ROYAL BARGE
me: fucking fat faggot
me: oh my god
me: there's a Puerto Rican woman praying out loud in earshot Caleb: LiLo was released from jail today.
Caleb: She's already on her way to rehab.
me: Thank God I am praying for her Caleb: Also, Lady Gaga protested Arizona's controversial immigration law at a Phoenix concert this weekend.
Caleb: And, he's still only a teenager, but Canadian singing sensation Justin Bieber has announced he'll soon release his illustrated memoirs.
me: WELL HE'S LIVED A LOT
Caleb: Also, a homicide bomber killed some kids in Afghanistan.
me: Are you sure it was a homicide bombing?
me: Because they're only homicide bombings when suicide is involved Caleb: I'm thinking of joining the Communist Party.
me: I've got some guns now Caleb: Well then.
Caleb: We're agreed.
me: see?
me: gun control
Caleb: ONE OF THE PRESIDENT'S POTENTIAL OPPONENTS IN 20-12 ISN'T HOLDING BACK WHAT SHE THINKS OF HIS PERFORMANCE SO FAR.

APPEARING ON "FOX NEWS SUNDAY" TODAY ... SARAH PALIN TOOK THE PRESIDENT TO TASK OVER HIS HANDLING OF THE ARIZONA IMMIGRATION BROU-HAHA.

THE MAMMA GRIZZLY SHOWED HER TEETH WHEN SHE COMPARED THE PRESIDENT AGAINST ARIZONA'S GOVERNOR. me: did you write that?
Caleb: You know it.
